Ex cop guilty in wrong-apartment slaying

A Dallas jury found former police officer Amber Guyger guilty on Tuesday of murder when she accidentally walked into a neighbor's apartment thinking it was her own and shot him dead as he ate ice cream.

The Sept. 6, 2018, killing of Botham Jean, a 26-year-old black PwC accountant, by a white officer sparked street protests, particularly when prosecutors initially opted to bring the lesser charge of manslaughter against Guyger, 31.

"We the jury unanimously find the defendant Amber Guyger guilty of murder as charged in the indictment," Judge Tammy Kemp read aloud to the courtroom from the jurors' statement. A sob cut the judge off and Kemp paused to address the courtroom: "No outbursts."

Guyger, 31, could face life in prison for the slaying.

It is relatively rare for U.S. police officers to be convicted of murder for shooting people they view as suspects. But unlike other recent high-profile killings, such as those of Michael Brown in Missouri and Philando Castile in Minnesota, Guyger was not on duty or responding to a reported crime when she pulled the trigger.

"Botham was the best we had to offer. It shouldn't take all that for unarmed black and brown people to get justice," said civil rights attorney Benjamin Crump, who is representing the Jean family.

This verdict is for Trayvon Martin, for Michael Brown ... for Eric Garner ... for so many unarmed black and brown unarmed human beings across America." Martin was shot and killed in 2012 by a civilian neighborhood watchman in Florida, who was cleared. Garner died in 2014 when a New York police officer put him in a prohibited chokehold. That officer was fired last month.

> "I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry. I have to live with this every single day,"
> Amber Guyger

Guyger, who had spent four years on the force before the killing, took the rare step of testifying in her own defense during her trial, tearfully expressing regret for shooting Jean but saying she had believed her life was in danger when she pulled the trigger.

During the trial, Guyger's defense attorney said she was "on autopilot" after a long work day, when she mistakenly parked on the wrong floor in the garage and was able to enter Jean's apartment because he had left the door slightly ajar.

"I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry. I have to live with this every single day," Guyger told the jury of eight women and four men.

In cross-examination, Assistant District Attorney Jason Hermus asked her, "When you shot him twice, you intended to kill him, didn't you?"

"I did," Guyger responded, in a calm voice.

Prosecutors also argued that Guyger did little to help Jean even after realizing her mistake, calling the 911 emergency phone number for an ambulance but not administering first aid.

Hermus also told the jury that Guyger missed blatant clues that she was not in her own apartment - including the smell of marijuana smoke - because she was distracted after a 16-minute phone call on her commute with her former police partner.

In her testimony, Guyger told jurors that the shooting "is not about hate; it's about being scared."

Guyger sat alone at the defendant's table, wiping away tears, after the verdict was read.

Neither prosecutors nor the defense focused on race during the trial.

"You had someone who was unarmed, unaggressive eating a bowl of ice cream, and somebody barged in and shot him to death," Merritt told reporters after the verdict was read. "We believed the right verdict would come out, though we knew that in America that is rare." REUTERS

Judge says Harvard Univ. admissions is constitutional

Sanders raises $25.3M, Buttigieg $19M in 3rd quarter

3 U.S. presidential hopefuls Bernie Sanders and Pete Buttigieg released strong third-quarter fundraising totals on Tuesday that are likely to place them near the top of the Democratic field, with Sanders bringing in $25.3 million and Buttigieg $19.1 million. Senator Cory Booker, who has languished in the low single-digits in polls, reported that he raised more than $6 million from July through September. They were the first of the 19 candidates seeking the Democratic nomination to challenge President Donald Trump in the November 2020 election to report their fundraising totals for the quarter, which ended at midnight on Monday. Sanders, whose status in opinion polls as the No. 2 candidate for the party's nomination behind Joe Biden has been threatened by a surge in support for fellow progressive Elizabeth Warren, hauled in more than any candidate has raised in any quarter so far. Teen protester shot by Hong Kong police

4 Hong Kong police shot a teenage protester on Tuesday, the first to be hit by live ammunition in almost four months of unrest in the Chinese-ruled city, amid violent clashes on the 70th anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic.Cat-and-mouse clashes spread from the shopping district of Causeway Bay to the Admiralty area of government offices on Hong Kong island, and then on to the New Territories bordering mainland China, with police firing tear gas and water cannon at petrol bomb throwing activists. Police said an officer shot an 18-year-old man in the shoulder in the Tsuen Wan area of the New Territories with a live round. Protesters have previously been hit with bean bags rounds and rubber bullets and officers have fired live rounds in the air. REUTERS

The Bronx Zoo said it has "zero tolerance" for the woman's behavior, though it's not guarenteed she will end up facing charges.

Woman taunts lion after entering its Bronx Zoo enclosure

The mystery woman was caught on video dancing for the lion inside his habitat over the weekend.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

A woman entered the lion enclosure at the Bronx Zoo over the weekend and was caught on video dancing for the male lion, who glared at her antics.

The woman, who was not identified, somehow made it over a 14-foot-deep moat to access the animal's habitat, and managed to make it out alive despite her proximity to the big cat.

A bystander filmed the Sept. 28 incident and shared it on Instagram. In the video, the woman can be seen looking at the lion and dancing around as the animal watched.

The Bronx Zoo condemned the woman's actions, saying the zoo has "zero tolerance" for trespassing.

"On Saturday, September 28, Bronx Zoo staff received a report that an individual had climbed over a visitor safety barrier at the African lion exhibit at the Bronx Zoo. This action was a serious violation and unlawful trespass that could have resulted in serious injury or death. Barriers and rules are in place to keep both visitors, staff and animals safe. We have a zero tolerance policy on trespass and violation of barriers."

The NYPD was reportedly in touch with the zoo and a criminal trespass report was expected.

As the video made the rounds online, comments accumulated that ranged from amusement to outrage.

"A squirrel has a bigger brain than this one," said one Instagram user. "I hope she does some jail time! If attacked they would have to put animal down!" and "This isn't ok or funny... smh... always has to be one tool... she should have been a snack.... would have served her right... bad example for the kids seeing this..." All comments seem to conclude that this was not a smart choice.

> "A squirrel has a bigger brain than this one."
> Said one Instagram user.

This woman is not the first person to jump into the zoo enclosure of a wild animal. Several others have done the same for clout on social media and their 15 minutes of fame. Unfortunately, such stunts can cost captive animals their lives.

On May 22, 2016, a man climbed into the lion's enclosure at the Santiago Metropolitan Zoo. He took off his clothes and approached the animals, and as the man came in contact with the lions, the zookeeper had to shoot both of the cats.

Perhaps the most tragic example is that of Harambe, a 17-year-old male Western lowland silverback gorilla who was shot dead by an employee at the Cincinnati Zoo when a small child crawled over the barrier and fell into the enclosure.

New York City poverty hits historic low

"We are clearly moving in the right direction," said one city official.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

City officials said Tuesday that the poverty rate among New Yorkers hit a historic low in 2018.

The poverty rate for New York City has fallen to 17.3 percent, which is a 3.6 percent drop since 2013.

Between 2013 and 2018, New York City has experienced a 13 percent growth in median household income and an eight percent increase in median earnings, according to city hall.

New York City has also seen an increase in half-a-million jobs.

Mayor de Blasio said in a press release that, "Poverty in New York City is at historic lows. From fighting for a $15 minimum wage to guaranteeing Pre-K for every child to Paid Safe and Sick Leave, we are putting more money in the hands of working families and creating a fairer city for all."

The poverty rate for New York City has fallen to 17.3 percent, which is a 3.6 percent drop since 2013.

Matthew Klein, Executive Director of the Mayor's Office for Economic Opportunity echoed de Blasio's sentiments, saying in a press release that, "The bold actions that New York City is taking—on housing, wages, early childhood, health care, and more—are producing meaningful and important progress in reducing poverty."

Additionally, Klein added, "The positive trends reflected in this most recent federal Official Poverty rate for New York City are consistent with the findings of our office's own more precise poverty measure released each spring. We are clearly moving in the right direction and committed to pushing hard for even more."

According to a press release, the American Community Survey details changes from 2017 to 2018 in New York City and here's what the numbers say:

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo.

Pompeo pushes back on U.S. House impeachment inquiry into Trump

The Secretary of State is being accused of "stonewalling" the impeachment inquiry.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Tuesday objected to a move by the U.S. House of Representatives to obtain depositions from five current and former State Department officials as part of an impeachment inquiry targeting President Donald Trump, accusing Democrats of bullying and intimidation.

The five have been scheduled to give depositions this week and next as the Democratic-led House looks into Trump's request to Ukraine's president during a July phone call to investigate a domestic political rival, Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden.

The officials "may not attend any interview or deposition" without executive branch counsel present to control disclosure of confidential information and questions, Pompeo wrote in a letter to House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Eliot Engel.

Engel and two other Democratic committee chairmen issued a statement accusing Pompeo of "stonewalling" the impeachment inquiry, and called him a "fact witness" in the investigation based on media reports that he had listened in on the call.

"He should immediately cease intimidating department witnesses in order to protect himself and the president," Engel and Representatives Adam Schiff and Elijah Cummings said.

Democrats last week launched the impeachment effort in light of a whistleblower complaint against the Republican president by a person within the U.S. intelligence community who accused Trump of soliciting foreign interference in the 2020 U.S. election for his personal political benefit.

The impeachment inquiry could lead to approval of articles of impeachment, or formal charges, against Trump in the House. That would lead to a trial in the Senate on whether to remove him from office but the president's fellow Republicans control that chamber and have shown little appetite for removing him.

Pompeo objected to Engel's request for the officials to be made available for depositions. The officials include former U.S. Ambassador to Ukraine Marie Yovanovitch and former U.S. special representative for Ukraine Kurt Volker.

> "He should immediately cease intimidating department witnesses in order to protect himself and the president"

In a letter posted on Twitter, Pompeo told Engel, "I am concerned with aspects of your request that can be understood only as an attempt to intimidate, bully and treat improperly the distinguished professionals of the Department of State, including several career Foreign Service Officers, whom the committee is now targeting. Man sucker punches elderly woman

The victim says she's just grateful to be alive after the brutal Brooklyn attack.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

The NYPD is asking for help finding the man who sucker punched a 71-year-old woman in Brooklyn.

Chief Dermot F. Shea, NYPD Chief of Detectives, shared a tweet with footage of the suspect in hopes someone will come forward with more information about this unprovoked attack.

The first tweet read, "Let's go New York... 800-577-8477 (TIPS)"

The second read, "A closer look at who we're looking for. This unprovoked attack occurred on Sept. 19 on New York Ave in Brooklyn. Victim left unconscious and unaware she'd been attacked. DM or call @NYPDTips 800-577-TIPS"

The victim is 71-year-old Joan Baptiste, a day-care worker, who has lived in Brooklyn for over twenty years. Baptiste was walking home from work on September 19, around 5:30 p.m. when a man, seemingly out of nowhere, sucker punched the woman leaving her knocked out on the street.

Baptiste has told outlets that she does not remember being punched but does remember someone saying that they needed to call 911. Baptiste also told the media that, "My jaw broke. When I went to the hospital, they did surgery. I had cuts inside my mouth, about five stitches."

Despite what happened to Baptiste, she has said that "God is good. It could have been worse. I could have been dead. If it had happened in the street, with vehicles coming and they pass over me, then it could have been worse. So I thank God it happened that way."

Baptiste remains hopeful that NYPD will find the suspect. Some outlets report that police believe the man is emotionally disturbed.

If you or anyone you know has information about this suspect, call NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477) or for Spanish, 1-888-57-PISTA (74782). If you don't want to call, you can text tips to 274637 (CRIMES) then enter TIP577. You can also submit tips on Twitter and the website. Everything is confidential.

New York invests $3 million for zero-emissions vehicles

Gov. Andrew Cuomo on Tuesday announced the availability of $3 million in state funds to help all municipalities purchase zero-emission vehicles.

In addition to zero-emission vehicles, the money will be used to help install related infrastructure.

The State Department of Environmental Conservation and New York's Environmental Protection Fund will be offering grants and rebates to help areas get the zero-emissions vehicles.

$3M

The $3 million will be divided into $500,000 for the cost of vehicle rebates, and $2.5 million in ZEV infrastructure grants

Governor Cuomo said in a press release that, "New York is making tremendous strides in reducing greenhouse gas emissions from all sectors by transitioning to cleaner power sources."

Additionally, he added, "This funding will help more communities achieve a greener future by supporting transportation that is better for the environment and their budgets."

By the addition and expansion of the new clean transportation, it will help position New York as the national leader for zero-emission vehicles. New York has already started the process to "Greenify" the state.

The $3 million will be divided between the cost of vehicle rebates, for which $500,000 is allocated, and infrastructure grants, which will receive $2.5 million in funds.

State officials want to lead the way in U.S. climate change efforts. REUTERS

Infrastructure grants will focus on installing hydrogen filling station components and electric vehicle supply equipment to keep the zero-emission vehicles going.

By the end of 2021, Gov. Cuomo hopes to have at least 10,00 ZEV charging stations built. By 2025, the goal is to have 800,000 stations.

Nick 13 of Tiger Army on the beauty of keeping their fans guessing

The band will play Knitting Factory this Friday

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Singer-songwriter Nick 13 has never really taken kindly to others inferring what direction his musical output should go in. After years of fronting the popular punk-meets-psychobilly band, Tiger Army, the tender voiced rocker threw fans for a loop, back in 2011, by releasing his very first solo album that had much more in common with Hank Williams than it did the Cramps. Needless to say, it through some fans for a loop while others welcomed the record as a deeply rewarding move from the gifted songwriter. When it was announced that Nick would be reviving Tiger Army for a new album in 2016, "V •••–", many were unsure of what to expect. Or what they wanted, for that matter.

Along with new members, Djordje Stejipovic on bass and drummer Mike Fasano, Nick 13 was able to recapture the intensity of the band's early days, all while incorporating some new elements from his foray into country music, as well as borrowing lush elements from the early days of Rock and Roll and Doo-wop. After touring the world behind "V •••–", the band went into the studio in 2018 and released the surf-inspired "Dark Paradise" EP. They returned last month with a brand new full-length, "Retrofuture"; the title of the album providing a wink and a nod to those who still hold onto any sort of guidelines for the band.

"One of the things that this record was about was, we're always trying to push the boundaries of what we do and evolve," says Nick 13, when I caught up with him over the phone one afternoon. "But at the same time," he adds, "I love the rock and roll and pop of the past and that's always a source of inspiration for me. But I'm looking for ways to twist that and change that and combine it with elements that are more modern in some ways. That's part of what the concept of this record is, as far as the title goes."

Upon the release of the first single "Eyes of The Night", Nick addressed his fans with this playful warning of what to expect from the album: "Listeners should never get too complacent in their idea of what Tiger Army sounds like," he wrote in a press release, "there are more surprises ahead!"

As we talk more about his inspirations, we discuss how the rebelliousness of Rock and Roll and the independence of the Punk spirit can lose it's danger and excitement when it gets burdened by the trappings of their labels. This kind of rank and file attitude can get to Nick 13 on occasion. Afterall, these were the kind of rules that he got into music to break in the first place.

"It does become tiresome sometimes because ultimately I'm creating the music that I'm inspired to create and that I'm feeling at that moment," he says. "When people try to ascribe intentions that aren't there, it's a little annoying. For example, doing the solo record years ago was a left turn for me. But when I came back to Tiger Army, as a sort of a full time thing with the 'V •••–' album, it wasn't because anyone was making me or because I had to. It was because I wanted to be doing that. Certainly, I was influenced by some of the things I learned during the time I was playing solo. But the fact that that album was a little bit slower, people said, 'oh, he's trying to combine the solo project with Tiger Army'. If I wanted to do the solo project, I would do the solo project. This just happened to be influenced by early 60s rock and roll and some of those influences that have always been a part of punk, but I was exploring in different ways… There are so many things that I love and enjoy. Which of them that might pop up as something I want to draw upon at that time could really be anything. That's where the music comes from, not some of the theories people come up with."

As for right now, Nick13 is enjoying this lineup of the band and is more excited than ever to be out on the road spreading the Rock and Roll gospel of Tiger Army.

"It's been great," he says. "I think we sound as good onstage as we ever have. The tour has been a lot of fun. We play some of the new songs live and people seem to enjoy that. That's a nice thing as opposed to them being indifferent (laughs)."

Tiger Army will play the Knitting Factory in Williamsburg this Friday, October 4.

4 SMART FASHION MONTH COLLECTIONS

The fashion weeks are over, and many of the presented collections have become a turning point for the industry. Metro highlights some of them. LUZ LANCHEROS MWN

Although since 2015 Alessandro Michele had changed the brand by turning it towards "feism" (artistic trend that aesthetically values ugliness), excess and seventies, now it's twisted again. Thinking about the normed bodies and with a philosophical touch of Michel Foucault, it shows how society unifies people with utilitarian clothing. Gucci presented white uniforms (not for sale) because when scrolling through Instagram it is possible to discover the same aesthetic that the brand has used and that has made it so successful.

FACEBOOK | RICK OWENS @RICK.OWENS.CORP

RICK OWENS

The designer was inspired by Mexico, but not by the world of "Coco" and "Frida." Instead, by the warm colors of Luis Barragán, Aztec architecture, and photographs of Josef and Anni Albers. Owens has used statement, geometric, rupturist and abstract pieces, always with risky materials, to create divergent and aesthetic forms. They became the most risky of all fashion weeks, so far.

FACEBOOK | CHRISTIAN LACROIX @CHRISTIANLACROIX

DRIES VAN NOTEN + LACROIX

Opposites attract. The French baroque style with Belgian minimalism – two designers who earned their place in fashion history – have come together to create maximalist, but functional pieces. Minimalism was transformed into color and textures. Everything with a lot of theatricality, drapes and brocades that became an absolute visual delight.

GETTY

MARINE SERRE

Climate change makes people forget about fluid fabrics and colors. But how to protect themselves from the elements that can not be controlled? Apocalypse. Black Tide (that's what this collection was called). This was the concept of dystopian future that was presented to the spectators, who witnessed how Serre presented moire uniforms, raincoats, wetsuits, overalls.

metro.us/horoscopes

Aries Don't leave anything unfinished or to chance. Partnerships should be handled delicately to bring about positive changes that will improve prospects for future dealings.

Taurus Step in and do something. You can make a difference if you use your voice to point out what's fair and what isn't. You'll gain respect and leave a lasting impression.

Gemini You'll be drawn into emotional situations. Listen to the options being offered and consider whether you want to get involved.

Cancer Get moving. Idle time will be the enemy. The less you do, the more criticism and complaints you'll encounter. A change of heart will leave you in limbo. Protect your assets.

Leo Refuse to let the actions of others stop you from doing your own thing. Follow your heart and pursue the goals that make you happy. An unexpected development will turn in your favor.

Virgo A change will be enlightening. Rediscover what brings you joy, eases your stress and makes you feel alive. Socialize, participate and expand your interests.

Libra Express your thoughts and make changes that will help you eliminate things that are holding you back. Expand your mind and reach out to people who share your beliefs and ambitions.

Scorpio Turn the corner and put the past behind you. Head down an exciting path filled with new challenges and life-altering experiences. It's time to live life your way.

Sagittarius Listen carefully, as the information someone gives you will be untrustworthy. Spend your time researching and making personal changes that will help you overcome obstacles.

Capricorn Take better care of yourself. Pay attention to detail and don't get involved in something that could result in injury or loss. Choose your battles wisely.

Aquarius Get your personal papers in order. Updating official documents will be essential if you don't want to pay a fine or be denied the opportunity to participate in something you want to do.

Pisces Keep an open mind, but don't be gullible. Someone will play with your emotions or entice you to get involved in something you should avoid. Self-improvement should be priorities. EUGENIA LAST

L-shaped building in Tokyo

There is less and less space in big cities left for buildings. And that is why the Japanese architectural firm SO&CO has recently completed the construction of one of the thinnest in the world which is just over two meters wide. The office building called the Multi-Tenant Building in Ginza is located on a L-shaped plot in a densely populated shopping district in Tokyo, Japan. MWN

With ALDS vs. Twins ahead, injuries still looming for Yankees

The Yankees have some roster decisions to make before Friday's Game 1 against the Twins.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Edwin Encarnacion's (left) status for the ALDS is still unknown while Gio Urshela (center) and James Paxton (right) are expected to be ready. GETTY IMAGES

The deadline for playoff teams to submit their 25-man Divisional Series rosters is at 9 AM ET on Friday.

Expect the New York Yankees to wait as close to that deadline as possible.

As the theme has been all season, injuries continue to play a prevalent role in manager Aaron Boone's decision-making.

With their ALDS against the Minnesota Twins kicking off on Friday night, the Yankees are waiting for word on some major names that were been hampered by the injury bug during the last few weeks of the regular season.

Designated hitter Edwin Encarnacion is dealing with a left oblique strain that has held him out since Sept. 12.

The 36-year-old will be tested throughout the week to determine if he'll be ready for the ALDS, partaking in simulated games on Tuesday and Wednesday.

If he's unable to go, his roster spot will be up for grabs between Luke Voit and Mike Ford.

Voit struggled mightily throughout the dog days of summer, slashing a measly .202/.330/.337 with two home runs and eight RBI in 27 games.

It opened the door for Ford to make a claim for a postseason roster spot as the 27-year-old lefty slashed .338/.398/.738 with nine home runs and 20 RBI over his final 30 games of the 2019 season.

Ford was a member of the Yankees' unlikely supporting cast that starred this year, which was headlined by DJ LeMahieu and Gio Urshela — the latter suffering a mild ankle sprain during the season finale on Sunday against the Texas Rangers.

He's expected to be good to go for Game 1.

Urshela is one of Major League Baseball's feel-good stories of the year, coming from nowhere as a 27-year-old to put up a huge season in the Bronx. He slashed .314/.355/.534 with 21 home runs in 132 games, allowing Yankees fans to quickly forget about Miguel Andujar's early, season-ending shoulder injury.

Finally, the good news is also expected to be heard for starting pitcher James Paxton, who was pulled early from his start on Friday night in Texas for precautionary measures.

An MRI revealed that he suffered nerve irritation in his left glute, but it won't affect his status for the playoffs.

Paxton surged down the stretch in 2019, becoming the Yankees' clear candidate to start Game 1 of the ALDS.

A difficult start to life as a Yankee saw Paxton go 5-6 with a 4.72 ERA in his first 18 starts with the club after being acquired from the Seattle Mariners.

But the southpaw rediscovered his devastating curveball and turned it on down the stretch, going 11-0 with a 2.51 ERA and 69 strikeouts in 61 innings of work.

Metro predicts: Who will win the 2019 World Series?

The dichotomy of sports is alive and well in Major League Baseball.

As the postseason kicks off this week, the path to the World Series is littered with teams on opposite ends of the market's spectrum. Big-city and big-money clubs are flanked by smaller teams heavily invested in analytics as seven teams currently remain in the quest for a World Series title.

The postseason began on Tuesday night with the Washington Nationals and Milwaukee Brewers squaring off in the National League Wild Card Game.

It was the first of two one-game playoffs as the Oakland Athletics and Tampa Bay Rays meet on Wednesday night to move on to the ALDS against the Houston Astros.

They'll join a loaded playoff class that features four 100-win teams — the Yankees, Astros, Dodgers, and Twins. That's something that's never been seen in MLB history until 2019.

That abundance of stellar teams makes forecasting the postseason nearly impossible, but we at Metro took a crack at it.

Here is what we came up with:

2019 WORLD SERIES ODDS

ASTROS - 2/1
DODGERS - 9/4
YANKEES - 9/2
BRAVES - 9/1
CARDINALS - 14/1
TWINS - 14/1
ATHLETICS - 18/1
NATIONALS - 18/1
BREWERS - 25/1
RAYS - 28/1
